

Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh.

MEMBERSHIP EXAMINATION—11th July 1894.

INSANITY.

1. Describe Myxœdema, giving special attention to its mental symptoms, and its relation to Cretinism.
2. Describe the Insanity of Adolescence, and Climacteric Insanity, with special reference to the distinguishing characteristics of each.
3. Describe the chief features, mental and bodily, of a case of Acute Delirious Mania. Describe the probable condition of the Brain Cortex. Lay down the general principles of treatment. Mention the chief dangers.
4. Describe the pathological appearances, naked eye and microscopic, in General Paralysis. Mention the pathological differences between a typical case of that disease, and a typical case of Chronic Alcoholism.